THE HBCU LIBRARY ALLIANCE HOLDS ITS SECOND LEADERSHIP INSTITUTE

The 2007-2008 Institute, facilitated by KTA Global Partners, was kicked off by opening speaker Kate Nevins, Executive Director of the Southeastern Library Network (SOLINET). Speakers such as Charles Greene, from the White House Initiative on HBCUs, also participated in the six-day event.

“Hosting the leadership institute is one of the major activities for the Alliance,” said Lillian Lewis, HBCU Library Alliance. “Our goal is to address the impending shortage of library directors by preparing trained leaders to deal with the complex issues facing libraries. The participants are also better able to advance a vision for the library as a valued partner in the teaching mission of their institution.”

Funded by a grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, the Leadership Institute was established to provide theoretical and practical instruction and useful resources to encourage the development of leadership skills within the HBCU library community.

“The program was excellent,” said Faye Priestly at Johnson C. Smith University. “The presenters were well-prepared, well qualified, and knowledgeable about the subject matter.”

Eleven libraries participated in this year’s Leadership Institute. Those libraries were Hinds Community College in Mississippi; Jackson State University in Mississippi; Johnson C. Smith in North Carolina; Mississippi Valley State University; Morehouse School of Medicine in Georgia; North Carolina Central; Southern University in Louisiana; St. Augustine’s College in North Carolina; Tougaloo College in Mississippi; Tuskegee University in Alabama; and Wiley College in Texas.
